International Biomedical Ltd. Acquires Ameda, Inc.

BUFFALO GROVE, IL - On January 5th, Ameda announced that it has officially been acquired by International Biomedical Ltd. International Biomedical is a family owned and operated, Austin, Texas based company that designs, manufactures, and distributes innovative neonatal and perinatal products and technologies to hospitals worldwide.

Ameda has a long history of bringing innovative hospital grade technology to the market. With a full portfolio of clinically-based breast pumping and nutritional warming solutions, Ameda ensures moms get the best start with products that are trusted by clinicians and lactation experts. As moms transition from hospital to home, Ameda offers a full range of solutions that include breast pumps and breastfeeding accessories.

The Ameda mission and product portfolio perfectly align with International Biomedical's core strengths, strategies and existing infant care solutions. With the purchase of Ameda, International Biomedical has now expanded its offering to support the nutritional needs of healthy and critically ill infants.

Ameda is committed to continuing our mission to help families achieve their breastfeeding goals through education and innovative products. To maintain continuity for our customers, Ameda and International Biomedical will continue to operate independently. We know how much breastfeeding matters to moms and their babies, and we will continue to be an integral part of the breastfeeding community. For further information, please contact your local Ameda sales representative or visit www.ameda.com
